The Fort Lauderdale housing market was characterized by rising median sales price, higher single-family sales and more inventory. Condo median sales price jumped 12.5% to $287,325 and single-family median sales price rose 9.7% to $340,000 respectively from the prior year quarter. Median sales price increased 3.8% for both luxury condo and luxury singlefamily sales over the same period. The luxury market represented the top 10% of all sales.

Listing inventory moved higher across the market with more pronounced growth in the luxury market. With the decline in condo sales and increase in single-family sales, the pace of the market moved in opposite directions by property type. The condo absorption rate, the number of months to sell all inventory at the current rate of sales, slowed 19.5% to 10.4 months. The market pace for single-family sales moved 1.5% faster to 6.6 months. Regardless of the pace of the market, properties took longer to sell but there was less negotiability over price.
